Dear Rae,

I tried to reach you a week or so ago but you were on extended travel. My reason for calling was to invite you as a "Distinguished Lecturer" to the ongoing MITRE Institute seminar here in Bedford. You were such an outstanding contributor at Harvard last year, I thought you deserved a rerun. Since the institute is developing programs on information system topics, I thought they should hear from a "real user." You would have plenty of time to prepare something because the openings described to me were in March/April.

[Redacted] and I had some useful discussions at MITRE and Harvard in the middle of July. He visited for a couple of days and later I sent him material which might be of assistance in preparing a conceptual framework for the planning study. After he returns from his month long travel in September, I hope to get down Washington for additional review and discussion.

My second invoice for professional services this year is enclosed. It covers the few days involved (10) at the same rate your contracts people calculated for the previous billing. There was only one trip to Washington for the "off-site" meeting.

I'll call your office next month about the lecture series.

Sincerely,

STAT

P.S. After our phone conversation yesterday, I contacted the MITRE Institute and they will send you a letter with a formal request to give a talk as a Distinguished Lecturer. They should include background information on previous speakers. Also, I told them the talk would be classified. Their point of contact is Dr. Elaine Campbell (617-271-7455).
